Senator Williams at Jacksonville.

[From the Oregon Sentinel, July 20th]

Senator Williams, on Tuesday last, addressed the citizens of this county at length on the political situation. The speech was a clear, clear-cut, past and logical statement of the reconstruction policy of Congress and the occasions, necessities and reasons for that policy The rebellion having been crushed, reconstruction was the next necessity All were desirous, he said, to accomplish this last work in as speedy a manner as was consistent with the permanent preservation of the nation's unity If there had been harmonious accord between the Executive and Congress, the work would have been accomplished long ago. But instead of harmony there was a conflict The question arose as to who was to blame for this want of harmony? The Senator answered this question by an appeal to the stern logic of facts, and we think that no candid man could listen to his exposé without a full conviction of Johnson's defection and guilt Supported by Johnson, the late rebels became arrogant, insubordinate and defiant They rejected the mild measures proposed by Congress. The South became a lawless chaos of murder and riot Strong measures became necessary to punish the guilty, of whatever party or race, establish order and secure the public tranquility. The hopeless and lawless condition of the South was shown from the testimony of prominent civilians and Generals, most of them lifelong Democrats The evidence was satisfactory and conclusive. The witnesses had a competent knowledge of the facts stated, and were unbiased and veracious. What then ought to be done? Law failed to accomplish its purpose. Its local administrators had been slave holders and rebels. They winked at cruelties perpetrated by former rebels on Union men and negroes. Criminals went unwhipt of justice, and crime and riot was the necessary consequence. Under these circumstances, and to cure these evils, and for the equal and impartial protection of all in their rights, the Military Reconstruction bill was introduced. It divided the South into five military districts, and these districts were placed under the control of high and impartial military officers. Their duty it was to secure the enforcement of the laws, to punish the guilty when the local tribunals failed to do so, and to scrupulously protect the rights of all. This military administration was to remain but temporarily. As soon as governments were organized, willing and able to punish crime and secure the administration of right and justice, they were to cease This bill originated in the Senate, passed that body, and at a late hour in the session was sent to the House. The Democrats in the House, acting with Thad Stevens and his band of real Radicals, by a bare majority incorporated negro suffrage in the bill, contrary to the arguments and protestations of a large majority of the Union men in the House With this amendment it went back to the Senate To reject it because negro suffrage had been incorporated in it by the Democrats and Stevens, would be to adjourn Congress without passing any bill for the reconstruction of the Southern States, and to give a longer lease to the lawlessness and bloodshed rampant in the South. The circumstances were pressing, and the Union Senate had no alternative but to adopt the bill as amended.

In speaking of this clause, apparently so repugnant and distasteful, Mr. Williams showed that it was not only absolutely necessary that the co-operation of loyal votes should be secured in the work of reconstruction, but, that it was eminently just that those who had buried their breasts to the storm of rebel bullets, should have the protecting power of the franchise placed in their hands, to shield them from the aggressive prejudice and hatred of those they had assisted to defeat on the field of battle, the speaker also showing that it was cheaper and better to protect the weaker race in this manner, than to burthen the nation with a continued military occupation of the Southern States. The Hon Senator went further and averred that were he in the State, and the question should assume a practical shape, his convictions of right would force him to vote for investing every American citizen with all the civil and political rights of citizenship

The Senator throughout was listened to with marked attention But few Democrats heard him through. The audience was a very large one, considering the fact that farmers are engaged in harvesting all over the valley. Mr. Williams makes no pretensions to eloquent oratory, but is a dignified, earnest and very interesting speaker. He is clear, accurate and precise Long may Oregon be honored with such men in the councils of the nation.

A HORRIBLE CASE OF SUICIDE.—The Springfield, Mass., Republican of 24th contains the following particulars of the recent terrible suicide in that place to which reference was made in a telegraphic dispatch

A suicide, in its mode one of the most sickening and horrible that the annals of self murder can show, occurred in this city on Saturday. The criminal and the victim was Mrs Morris Gilmore, a widow of sixty five, who lived by herself in an up stairs tenement on Taylor street, a short distance east of Chestnut street The occupants of the lower ten

THURSDAY MORNING JULY 25, 1867

The Beginning of a Great Work.

The people of Oregon and the Northwest Territories will be much gratified to learn that the project for the speedy construction of the long talked of Northern Pacific Railroad is assuming a tangible form A few days ago we alluded briefly to the subject mentioning the fact that a new company representing great wealth had been organized at Boston to take immediate measures for the preliminary survey This intelligence is fully confirmed by the arrival of Gen James Tilton Engineer of the Company, and formerly Surveyor General of Washington Territory, who has instructions to make an examination of the passes through the Cascade mountains during the present summer and to report to the Company by December next Gen. Tilton has gone to Olympia to organize a force to commence the work at once. His instructions when he left New York were to make an examination of the route through the Cascade mountains by the Columbia river first, and then to examine the more northern passes But on arriving at San Francisco he received an order from the President of the Company, directing him to commence operations at the passes east of Puget Sound, as the summer was too far advanced to admit of his doing this year the whole work that had been assigned to him. He will therefore examine the country with a view to ascertaining the grades, etc, through Packwood's Pass south of Mount Ranier, and also through the Snoqualmie Pass north of that peak Two parties will be organized for the purpose, and the preliminary survey will be pushed along as rapidly as is consistent with the accuracy that is necessary to be attained. The intention is to make such a survey as will enable the Company to decide as to the best route for the main line, and at a subsequent time the route will be examined for the branch which is intended to have its terminus at Portland The Company have ordered a similar survey, commencing at the western shore of Lake Superior and extending as far west as the party may be able to penetrate this this year This portion of the work is under the direction of Gen Spaulding of New York, late an engineer in the Army of the Potomac. Members of the Company have donated $150,000 for these surveys, and the object is to hurry them forward as rapidly as possible so that the Company may be able to lay their reports before Congress at its meeting in December The same aid will be applied for on the next meeting of Congress for this road which has been granted by the Government to the Central Pacific This, with the land subsidy already obtained, will place the Northern Pacific on the same footing with the Central abroad The people of New England, of Northern New York and the whole tier of the great Northern States are deeply interested in the Northern Pacific road, and men representing the various railroad lines of those States are heartily urging on the work With the influences which may thus be brought to bear, there can be but little doubt that Congress will grant the aid which will be required There seems to be a strong probability that this great enterprise will soon be actually under way. The men who have it in hand, some of whose names we published in a recent article on this subject, are widely known as men of energy, wealth and business capacity, and there can be no doubt that they mean to use every exertion to put the work through. The time allowed General Tilton for making the preliminary survey is quite short, but he believes that he will be able to make such an examination of the country during the summer and fall as will enable the Company to select its route. When the building of the road begins, it is the intention to work on both ends of it at once The rivalry of the Central Pacific will stimulate competition, and if the Government aid asked for can be secured, there is every reason to believe that within a very few years the Northern Pacific Railroad will emerge from a possibility to a reality certainly the prospect appears better than it has ever looked before.

United States —Some days ago the telegraph announced that Hon Rufus Mallory, member of Congress from Oregon, had sailed for home. He left New York in the steamer of the 17th inst. There is nothing surprising in the fact that he found it desirable to return; but we know not what excuse he has to offer for leaving at the particular time when Congress was in session Business of the highest importance was before that body, and the member from Oregon, instead of remaining in his place to represent the views of those who sent him there, precipitately left his post and started for home What was the cause? Was he afraid to meet the responsibility he would have been compelled to face had he remained in company with the representatives who are brave enough to do the people's will? Oregon sent him there to do a work, and not to evade the duty with which he was entrusted. He was there at the beginning of the session, and his constituents have a right to complain that he did not remain Our Senators were not aware that there would be a July session, and hence could not possibly be present. But for our Representative there is no such excuse We send men to Congress to represent us, not to consult their own convenience and desires about attending to matters of public business. There are a good many people who wanted to see our Congressman on the record on the questions which have been considered by that body, and who would have been very glad had he taken the trouble to remain in his seat ten days longer

Owing to the excessive modesty of Mr. Rosenheim in not voting for himself, he was not elected City Marshal last evening, though forty-three ballots were taken It is unfortunate enough that he should be compelled to lose the honors and emoluments of the office for a whole week through a superabundance of modesty Why can't he put in that ballot for himself quietly and undemonstratively, and thus end his anxiety? Just as well have done it last evening; for to this complexion must it come at last We protest that for a man in this situation to hold out through forty three ballots, is carrying modesty a little too far A little coyness would have been commendable, but this is the worst sort of prudery, and it is really too ridiculous.

The "irresponsible" individual who is doing the writing for the Herald in the absence of "Beriah Brown, editor," says that the OREGONIAN "two years ago was proclaiming that mercy to rebels passed away with Lincoln and justice has assumed her place with Andrew Johnson" We attribute this remark to ignorance and malevolence, as the OREGONIAN never "proclaimed" anything of the kind If there ever were any who thought that the removal of Lincoln was brought about by the agency of Providence so that the rebels might find a punisher in Andrew Johnson, and that justice might be more firmly upheld by him than by Lincoln, we were not of them.

The Illinois State Medical Society declare that "the diet that is ordinarily most wholesome is the proper diet to be taken during an epidemic of cholera" Those who spoke to this resolution testified to the beneficial effects of ripe fruit, such as berries and peaches, in case of dysentery

The reported sale of the American Flag newspaper at San Francisco is authoritatively denied by the editor, who says it is not talked of or even thought of by the parties interested, but was a malicious canard.

LETTERS FROM THE INTERIOR OF THE STATE

[FROM OUR TRAVELING CORRESPONDENT]

SALEM July 22d 1867

I always feel as if I were at home when I get to Salem but the place is getting so fast and growing so large, that I shall not be able to keep pace with it unless I visit it oftener The city is spreading out in every direction, and several fine bricks are being erected in addition to the many other buildings

This city now supports seven churches nine saloons and beer shops, two lodges of Good Templars, and eight base ball clubs Who will not say that Salem is getting to be a fast place?

It is funny to see my old friends—well, I'll not mention them—playing base ball Old fellows and young fellows, tall and short fellows rich and poor State officers and citizens all play, and if sprained ankles, crippled fingers, and battered shins are marks of good players, why, the Salem boys are experts

Well, base ball makes lots of fun for the town people, but the hard working country folk, who have plenty of useful exercise, growl about having to pay for newspapers filled up with base ball nonsense I paid a visit to the

and found the "necessary evil" in a very flourishing condition, under the supervision of Superintendent Berry, and Warden Morse The hard times" seem not to affect its prosperity in the least. The buildings are all temporary, but everything is as secure as the circumstances will admit of Neatness and perfect order pervades the whole establishment, and the convicts fifty two in number, are as well drilled as a company of veteran soldiers. Maj Berry is manufacturing a large quantity of excellent brick, to be used in the construction of a penitentiary, and other State buildings, and for sale The convicts seem to be an industrious set of fellows, at all events they work well whether the do it with a will or not

The buildings and brick yard are watered by a force pump, driven by a water wheel in the fine little creek that flows through the grounds

This institution is located one mile and a half back of the city, on lands purchased by the State for that purpose and it will probably remain there as long as Oregon needs a penitentiary

THE ROADS

are as good as they ever get to be in Oregon, and yet there is room for much improvement There has been considerable work done on the stage road, between Portland and Corvallis, but as a general thing it has been but where it was least need ed No country can ever be very prosperous without good thoroughfares They are the arteries of the State, and yet our main stage road in many places is scarcely fit for a decent cow trail From Aurora to Milwaukie it is horrible Much of the way over that road, the stage has to pur sue its "winding way" among the primitive trees Clackamas is a good substantial old county, but she exhibits poor taste in road making

Spirit of the Eastern Press

The latest Eastern papers received bear date a few days prior to the opening of the late special session of Congress The Union press without a notable exception took strong ground against the "opinion" of Attorney General Stanbery, and called loudly for a session of Congress to take measures to correct the mischief which the President was doing We give a few extracts indicative of the general spirit of the press on the subject. The Albany Journal, which has always been one of the most moderate of Republican papers, held this emphatic language

Let Congress assemble Let it pronounce at once, and in emphatic terms, its opinion of the Executive usurpation Let it demand the instantaneous removal of rebel officers who may have been restored previous to its meeting, in accordance with the "opinion of Stanberry Let it pass a supplemental or explanatory act, which will remove all doubts as to the powers conferred under the laws already in existence. Then, if the President continues obstinate and unyielding, let it proceed to exercise the authority vested in it by the Constitution, so decisively as to prove, once for all, that no officer of the United States Government can with impunity exceed the line of his duty, or trench upon the functions reserved to other departments

The New Haven Palladium, one of the ablest journals of New England, said

The last attitude of the administration can have and ought to have but one result Congress must meet in July and a bill must be passed so clear and so explicit that all the ingenuity of Mr. Stanbery cannot be able to pervert it to the wishes of his master We had wished for no July session The South under the bill was at peace, pacification was in progress, order was gradually being restored This decision will stir up afresh the fires which had just begun to smoulder. But if Andrew Johnson has not yet learned how puny and insignificant a power he holds he must be taught again. The lesson of last year must again be learned, and Andrew Johnson must be shown that to oppose the will of the people in this matter simply continues a struggle to which there can be but one conclusion, and that one ruinous to himself

The New York Times, the principal paper of Union antecedents which is still inclined to look with special favor on the President, said that a "session limited to the perfecting of the Reconstruction Law in the light of the Attorney General's criticism, may well be demanded It is right that obstacles to reconstruction should be removed, promptly and effectually"

The Pittsburg Commercial, in commenting on the obstructive course of the Administration, remarked

The part of Mr Stanbery appears to be to furnish the President just so much and such kind of law as will assist the hostile purpose—too frequently the use to which Attorney Generals are put Already the frequent legal constructions from that source have come to be regarded as an interference, and the effect has not been good There is a strong will in the nation's bosom, and it will be well for the President if he provoke it not. The people—whose will is the ultimate law of the land—are firmly resolved to see reconstruction through, and, should occasion require it, they will no more hesitate to brush away the President than Sheridan does to remove a constable in New Orleans. One would think that Mr Johnson and his advisers had been admonished enough of this If he has not yet learned the length of his rope there is yet opportunity, and it looks somewhat as though he felt inclined to improve it

The New York Herald, a paper which cannot be suspected of an affinity for "Radicalism," thus spoke on the all important question

It, indeed, requires only very moderate ability to make quibbles of any sort Is the Reconstruction law to be acted upon in this spirit? Are legal arguments to deprive it of its vitality? Does the President, under pretence of telling the commanders how to execute the law, intend to tell them only how to defeat it? Evidently that is just where we stand This is the evident purpose now, and it is clear that we are on the eve of new troubles Above all it is clear that reconstruction cannot go forward until we have another Executive How long shall that be? This is now the great question for the country to consider We have the President's platform in the two opinions—we know what to expect from him—and we ought to determine at once what shall be done

The Springfield (Mass) Republican, one of the most moderate or "conservative" journals of the Republican party, demands the trial of Jefferson Davis for treason It declares that "we should not be afraid to meet the logical consequences of our own ideas," and enumerates the following among other reasons why Davis should be brought to trial

We want to see Davis tried for treason not only for the settlement of the legal and constitutional principles in the war, but for the development of the interior history of the rebellion, its spirit and purposes, which a full and exhaustive trial would bring out Let Alex H Stephens and the other associates of Davis be put upon the stand, and let us have their sworn testimony as to the secret consultations and schemes of the rebel conspirators We should thus obtain material for the real history of the rebellion and for the satisfaction of the public mind and conscience The national honor is also involved in the trial of Davis It will be felt to be a cowardly and disgraceful thing if the civil authorities drop the rebel chief plain, untried, neither convicted nor acquitted, and leave the principles involved in his case unsettled, and it will be so Whether he shall be convicted or not hung or pardoned, or acquitted altogether, let him by all means be tried Let not national justice be afraid of its own shadow Having succeeded no small amount of blood and treasure to maintain the national unity, let us not shrink from the legal definition of the act itself or from its logical consequences

The Press has the following in regard to Josephine county "The copper mines in that section are now reckoned as one of the most substantial accessories in the mineral developments of Southern Oregon Over 5 000 pounds of copper have been extracted from the ores since the two furnace went into operation a few weeks since and the amount of ore is considered inexhaustible Josephine county has also been receiving numerous accessions to its agricultural population of late We understand that twenty five or thirty emigrant families have located there this season, many of whom have invested pretty extensively in real estate as though they intended remaining there some time.

TOUGH QUESTIONS —The Napa (Cal) Register publishes a political catechism addressed to Mr Haight the Democratic candidate for Governor of California in which we find the following pointed interrogatory The question is addressed to him because of his desertion of the Republican party

What kind of popularity think you, had Judas among the Apostles after the betrayal? Do you think the Jews would have been simple enough to run him for office to catch the Apostles' vote?

Here is another almost equally pointed

Do you not know that the "Abolitionists made the war,' and that, too, when you were one of them, and do you expect that we will reward your destructive labors with our votes and offices? Do you expect that we will feed the dog that bit us, before the wound heals?

THE GREAT TOPIC.—Is there is anything particularly exciting to the public mind just now, it is the National game of base ball. Everybody has got base ball on the brain. The epidemic had run over the country more generally than the cholera ever did. The telegraph has got it. The newspapers have got it. Everybody has got it. The lawyers can't make an appeal in behalf of a client, without "batting" his opponent's client, and losing is term "caught" in a "foul strike," or something of sort. If a merchant has a good day's sales, he has made a splendid "run." The speculator makes bad or good "batting" according as he wins or loses. Preachers "strike" the sinners and bring the ashes to on a splendid "home run." Editors, politicians, the President and Congress are continually appealing to the people as "umpires." The City Council couldn't get along for a month or more, on account of a "balk." Candidates, meantime, found it difficult to discover which "bases" they ought to "hold." The "outs" played desperately to get the "innings" the "in" of course, "scored" their best before laying down the tools and taking the "field." Business generally has been arrested by a "short stop." Poets "sweet nose now-a-days run the "nine." Fast horses do not go more at "2:40," but on "the fly." And so everything has got to running in base ball grooves and the technical words of the noble game have been ruthlessly converted into slang for the use of people in all professions and callings. The game thrives and clubs are being multiplied. They grow up everywhere now—young men, old men, big boys, little boys—everybody plays, and everybody pants to challenge everybody else. In a late number of Wilkes' Spirit of the Times the game occupies a conspicuous position among the other sporting articles and items. It is spoken of as "the game" as though it were the only game known. Thus we have "The game in New Jersey." "The game in New York." "The game in the East." "The game in the West," etc., etc. The telegraph has taken up the story of the travels and triumphs of the National Club of Washington, and how "after we shall hear less of the President's famous swings around the circle and less of Congressional obstruction. Vive, Base Ball! Hallelujah to "the game!"

THAT "UNPLEASANTNESS."—Having received a note from Mr. Wm. Leahy, Secretary of the O. B. B. Club, Vancouver, requesting us to publish the communication which we mentioned yesterday as anonymous, as coming from the club, we cheerfully comply. The following is the letter referred to:

VANCOUVER, July 23d, 1867.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Dear Sir—In your issue of to-day, we notice an article headed "An Unpleasantness," which conveys the impression that difficulty took place between the Occidental and Sherman Base Ball clubs, of this place, on Saturday last. We wish to say that such is not the case, as both clubs are, and have been, on the best terms. It is true that a difficulty took place on the base ball grounds after our game, between a former member of our club and an outsider, with which we had nothing whatever to do. We also wish to state that we are entirely unaware of the "subsequent reconstruction" which you mention as having taken place. We hope you will publish the above, as we think the article referred to emanates from anything but a friendly disposition towards us.

Yours, &c., Secretary O. B. B. C.

Which to thoroughly disabuse the minds of the members of the O. B. B. Club of the impression that the Item mentioned was suggested by an unfriendly feeling We certainly have no such feeling toward the Club. On the contrary, we highly regard those of them whom we know and we never listened to a word of disparagement of any one of them. The Item was published merely as a matter of news.

THE PENITENTIARY BUILDING.—Major M F Berry, one of the commissioners to dispose of the old penitentiary, came down yesterday, bringing with him a deed for the property, signed by the Governor and two of the Commissioners, in favor of the Oregon Iron Works company. The other commissioner, Mr Atkinson, resides here and will sign to-day and then the transfer will take place formally. The State reserves the privilege of sinkdar fixtures, together with a lot of saddle horses and other work made or partly made up and in store in the building. The Company gets the building and block, taking all risks as to adverse titles We understood Major Berry to state that the company also get the blocks between the building and the river From and after to-day, the "old penitentiary" will be such only in history; for the company will immediately set to and commence the work of converting it into the Oregon Iron Works"

CIRCUIT COURT, SHATTUCK, JUDGE.—State vs Dorsille Brown; motion in arrest of judgment on verdict of jury overruled. The District Attorney two days in which to perfect his appeal to the Supreme Court. Defendant to be discharged if appeal is not perfected within that time.

Reuben Brad vs W E. Ish. Cause submitted to the Court for trial Part of the testimony heard and continued for submission of further proof.

H. Sewell vs J. McClellan. Order of publication of summons.

F. J. McGowan vs John W. Gates Submitted to jury Verdict for defendant; that the plaintiff is not the owner of, or entitled to the possession of that portion of free Original block 35, in the city of Portland, for which defendant defends.

Goodhue & Alexander vs Allen & Fisher. Plaintiff ruled to nonsuit as relates to defendant Fisher.

FEAR OF RACE.—Indians are not particularly affectionate toward Chinamen, and Chinamen are ditto, on the Indian question. They are too much alike, and yet too dissimilar, to have much admiration for each other The Indian, especially, stands a good deal upon his pride of race. He makes it a point to do nothing like a Chinaman. Whenever he looks upon a Celestial, the "Big Injun, me," feeling swells naturally in his bosom and spills over. The other day a Boston man was trying to dicker with an Indian to saw a pile of wood He wanted a dollar for the job; Boston offered him six-bits. He was angry at the meanness of the offer and walked off, growling "No no Chinaman;" and in that, he expressed his sentiment for the whole Celestial race

THE OPERA COMPANY.—Prof. Grob, agent for the Blanchi Opera Company, received a dispatch yesterday from Signor Blanchi, stating that the company will sail for Portland on Saturday next, and will commence their operas as soon as they arrive We may look, therefore, for the Emmanee as soon as Friday evening of next week The company will consist of Signorina Blanchi, Signor Blanchi, Signorina Bellini, Signor Cuniolli and Seignor Bolton, head of the persons first advertised.

STEAMER STORES.—The steamer Rescue left the wharf here, yesterday, loaded to the guards with commissary stores for Fort Vancouver A considerable portion of them came by the steamship Continental.

NEW CRAFT.—The schooner Crosby sails this morning for Victoria with about fifty tons of freight, consisting chiefly of flour. She takes, however, a small quantity of wheat, oats and general merchandise DEAD.—We learn that the little child of Mr. Carroll, drowned yesterday as having been so severely burned on Tuesday, died yesterday from the effects of its injuries.

ALL QUIET.—Mssrs. Berry and Sam. Hendrick, who came down from Salem yesterday, report "everything quiet along the banks of the Willamette," and elsewhere, as far as heard from. We are glad to hear that "everything is quiet"—it is news It is unpleasant to hear of turbulence and turmoils. Besides, misery likes company

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—The Senator brought down yesterday the following: 620 qr sks flour, 7 bales woolen goods, 1 pkge casting, 1 pkge springs, 1 wheel, 1 coop ducks, 4 bales wool, old sks middlings.

BASE BALL PRACTICE.—The Pioneers will meet for practice this afternoon at half past 5 o'clock

THE ELECTION LAST EVENING.—The City Council elected, last evening, several gentlemen to responsible offices. Of course some of the people are united and some are not, candidates ditto All the disappointed candidates and people, can have their lacerated feelings healed and be united exactly, if they will call this morning, on Harmon Bros, corner of Morrison and Front streets The persons elected, probably have suits from Barman Bros, or they couldn't have been elected

STATE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.—The Oregon State Teachers' Institute and Educational Association will hold its annual session in Portland, commencing on Tuesday, July 30th. The teachers and all others interested in the cause of education, are cordially invited to be present and participate in the exercises Those wishing to find homes during their stay at the Institute will please report themselves to the undersigned at the corner of Taylor and Park streets O B PRAMBLE, Rec. Sec'y.

DURING THE PROCESS OF TEETHING, every mother should give her child MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP It relieves the child from pain, softens the gums, cures wind colic, and is sure to regulate the bowels Gives rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child Perfectly safe in all cases, as millions of mothers can testify Hostetter, Smith & Dean Agents for the Pacific Coast

THE MAN WHO SAID THE Howdy Dye Colors manufactured by Howe & Stevens were the greatest discovery of the age for domestic use, hit the nail on the head precisely. By the same line of statement, Messrs Howe & Stevens are among the greatest benefactors of the day. The great public evidently believe in the colors, for they are to be found in about every well regulated household in the country.—Sold by Smith & Davis

PERFECTLY ENRAPTURING.—Such were our feelings as we stepped into the Music and Art Gallery of W. T. SHANAHAN, on First street, a few days since, and listened to the delightful tones and harmony which came from one of Mason & Hamlin's Cabinet Organs. From the soft breathing flute tones to the thundering bass of the pipe organ, all was equally free and sweet And why is it other makers cannot produce instruments like these? Mason & Hamlin were the first to introduce the Cabinet Organ, and have gained such world-wide notoriety that it requires the work of two large factories to supply the demand for these valuable instruments

A SPLENDID INSTRUMENT.—We saw, yesterday, at J. L Parrish & Co's something new in the way of an organ —a French instrument called the Organ Harmonium—invented by Alphonse Rodolphe. It is a very considerable modification of the organ as we have them from the American manufactories. It is provided with sixteen stops, each of which exercises a distinct and peculiar effect upon the tone. The bass stops are the Forte, Jeu Doux, (soft, sweet) Basson, Clarion, Bourdon, English Horn, the treble stops are Expression, Tremolo, Scotch Bagpipe, Flute, Clarionette, Alto, Hautbois, Voix Celeste, Forte, and Knee or Full Expression The effect of these stops in changing the tone is most surprising For instance: from the flute to Voix Celeste with Full Expression, the tone changes from what sounds precisely like a soft flute, to the full grand harmony which we would expect from an Angel choir—what the name imports. The Key-Board is movable and can be adjusted to any key to any instrument, or to the voice of any singer. Other changes are no less surprising. The instruments are of the most perfect workmanship and of the highest finish; have taken the first medals at all the great European Expositions. The prices range from $175, to $500. Persons in want of an instrument should call and see them, for it is impossible to get a correct idea of them, except from personal inspection. J. L. Parrish & Co., are sole agents for the Pacific coast.

Truth and Falsehood—An Allegory.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

I

List to the tale well worth the ear
Of all who wit and sense admire—
Invented—it is very clear—
Some ages prior to Matthew Prior.

II

Falsehood and Truth "upon a time,"
One day in June's delicious weather,
("Twas in a distant age and clime)
Like sisters, took a walk together.

III

On, on their merry way they took,
Through fragrant wood and verdant meadow,
To where a beech beside a brook
Invited rest beneath its shadow.

IV.

There, sitting in the pleasant shade,
Upon the margin's grassy matting,
(A velvet cushion ready-made)
The young companions fell to chatting

V.

Now while in voluble discourse
On this and that their tongues were running,
An habit bids each speak, perforce
The one is frank; the other cunning.

VI.

Falsehood, at length, impatient grown
With scandals of her own creation,
Said, "Since we two are quite alone,
And nicely screened from observation—

VII

Suppose in this delightful rill,
While all around is so propitious,
We take a bath!"—Said Truth, "I will—
A bath, I'm sure, will be delicious!"

VIII.

At this her robe she cast aside,
And in the stream that ran before her,
She plunged—like Ocean's happy bride—
As naked as her mother bore her!

IX.

Falsehood at leisure now undressed,
Put off the robes her limbs that hamper,
And having donned Truth's snowy vest,
Ran off as fast as she could scamper!

X.

Since then the subtle maid, in sooth,
Expert in lies and shrewd evasion,
Has borne the honest name of Truth,
And wears her clothes on all occasions.

XI.

While Truth, disdaining to appear
In Falsehood's petticoat and bodice,
Still braves all eyes, from year to year,
As naked as a marble goddess!

"COMPOUND HOUSEHOLDERS."—If Americans could only understand it, the pending contest upon the reform question in England would be intensely interesting. The terms used, however, and the conditions upon which suffrage is limited in England, render the cable dispatches comparatively unintelligible to the majority of readers.

It is stated that there is in England and Wales about 5,300,000 adult males. Of these about 900,000 are now electors, and the rest are disfranchised. The reform bill of 1860, introduced by Mr. Gladstone, proposed to admit to the franchise 172,000 new voters in the counties, and 144,000 in the towns, making the whole number of electors between 1,200,000, and 1,300,000. Yet this bill, still denying the franchise to nearly four-fifths of the adult males of England, was the hideous and "revolutionary" measure which the tories denounced so fiercely less than one year ago, and upon which they defeated the liberal ministry and came into power. Forced by popular excitement to propose some reform, the tory ministry brought in the bill now pending, which, in its original form, admitted but a small number of additional electors, but which, by successful amendments, has at length been so enlarged and extended as to far exceed any proposition ever made by any liberal party.

The bill as originally offered simply extended the franchise to a certain class of rate payers. By successive amendments, reducing the annual rate or tax required to entitle a man to vote, admitting to the suffrage all men engaged in professions or scientific and literary pursuits, and finally securing to lodgers and persons renting furnished apartments the same political classification as householders, the bill was very greatly extended in its effect, and the tories—the old-fashioned haters of popular government—became very much dissatisfied with it. But, having pledged themselves to support Disraeli in any bill that contained the "personal rating" qualification, they followed sullenly in his retreat from one point to another until at length even the "personal rating clause" was dodged by an ingenious amendment. In England the rates, or taxes, may either be paid personally, or by an arrangement with the landlord—he paying the whole tax for himself and tenants. Those who pay rates under the latter system are termed "compound householders," in distinction from those who pay their rates personally. Now the number of compound householders is very large, and as it is optional with the local authorities to collect the rates in that mode or not, the landlord interest, controlling local authorities, would be able to greatly increase the number of compound householders, and to diminish the number of workingmen who pay rates personally. The provision upon which the Tories so much relied was that of no householder of the class proposed to be admitted to the franchise should vote unless so paid his rates personally. It is easy to see what an absolute power this clause gives the land owner and landlord interest. It was upon this point that the fierce battle was fought and a most important liberal victory gained. Instead of enlarging the terms of the bill, the Liberals insisted that all rates should be paid personally thus shortening the compounding system altogether, and with it the power of the landlord to increase or diminish the number of voters, and this adroit amendment was carried, to the infinite disgust of the Tories. Disraeli's acceptance of this amendment has caused them to hate him bitterly, and they openly charge him with treachery.

But even this is not the worst calamity that a poor Tory in this fearful age is forced to bear. The telegraph informs us that on Thursday last the House voted, by a majority of 127, that no borough should be entitled to a member of Parliament, unless the population was at least 7,000. This is a crushing blow at the pocket borough system which has been another main reliance of the Tory party. It will be remembered that there are still a number of boroughs represented in Parliament by two members which have less than five hundred electors, while large cities and towns have the same representation. This is the first time, it is stated, that the English Parliament has ever consented to resort to population as a basis of representation, and the importance of this Liberal victory cannot well be overestimated. With all these changes in the bill, it is no wonder that the Tories curse Disraeli and look upon their cause as lost. When the Derby ministry came in it was a solemn warning by Tory organs not to undertake to pass a reform bill in a House so strongly Liberal. The popular excitement, and perhaps the personal wish of the Queen, forced the ministry to the unwelcome task, and it now seems not unlikely that the session will end in the utter disintegration and destruction of the Tory party, the appearance of Mr. Disraeli in the character of an extreme Radical, and the adoption of changes which will render manhood suffrage inevitable. The age is very cruel to Conservatives on both sides of the water.—St. Louis Democrat.

DINNER.—Sir, respect your dinner; idolise it; enjoy it properly. You will be by many hours in the week, many weeks in the year, and many years in your life the happier if you do.

Don't tell us it is not worthy of a man. A man's senses are worthy of employment, and should be cultivated as a duty. The senses are the arts. What glorious feasts does Nature prepare for your eye in animal form, in landscape and painting? Are you to put out your eyes and not see? What royal dishes of melody does her bounty provide for you in the shape of poetry, music, whether wind or wiry, notes of the human voice, or ravishing song of birds! Are you to stuff your ears with cotton and vow that the sense of hearing is unmanly?—you obstinate dolt you! No surely; nor must you be so absurd as to fancy that the art of eating is in any way less worthy than the other two. You like your dinner, man; never be ashamed to say so. If you don't like your victuals, pass on to the next article; but remember that every man who has been worth a fig in this world, as poet, painter, or musician, has had a good appetite and a good taste. Ah, what a poet Byron would have been had he taken his meals properly, and allowed himself to grow fat—if nature intended him to grow fat—and not have physicked his intellect with wretched opium pills and acrid vinegar, that sent his principle to sleep, and turned his feelings sour! If that man had respected his dinner, he never would have written Don Juan.—Thackeray's "Early and Late Papers."

BUSINESS OF CHICAGO, CINCINNATI AND ST. LOUIS.—Hereafter, says the Chicago Tribune, "the pre-eminence of Chicago as the Metropolitan city of the Northwest will be a matter of record. Figures may sometimes lie, but the truth of these must be so indubitable that we suspect that we shall hear no more from either of the wood-state tions on the Ohio and the Mississippi about their aspirations to be reckoned as rivals of Chicago. The following figures show that last year in Chicago there were fifty-nine firms whose sales exceeded one million dollars; in Cincinnati, fifteen; and in St. Louis, fifteen. The heaviest sales reported by a single house amounted in Chicago to $9,230,907; in St. Louis to $3,127,223; and in Cincinnati, to $2,700,000. In Chicago fourteen houses report sales exceeding two millions of dollars; in Cincinnati, four; and in St. Louis one."

The Hungarian Crown—A Romantic History.

The general correspondence of Vienna, in a sketch of the incidents connected with the ancient crown of the Hungarian Kings, tells the following:

"When Prince de Windischgratz appeared before Buda with his army at the end of 1848, Kossuth and Lindalaus Muraszi went to the chapel of the palace and demanded the crown from the keeper of the insignia, Joseph Hermenyi. But the revolutionary movement had not inspired the respect for the venerable relic; for when the guardian, yielding to force, gave it up, and with a feeling of respect remarked, I hand you the sacred diadem with which fifty kings have been crowned during eight hundred years,' the people forced Kossuth to receive it uncovered, shouting out "Hats off!" The crown followed the dictator in his retreat to Debrecsin, and after the revolution it disappeared without leaving any traces, and the legend gradually spread among the people that the sacred object had been "carried off by angels to the tomb of Arpad. In Government regions the belief prevailed at first that Kossuth had taken the loyal insignia into exile with him, but upon consideration that course seemed impossible, as Ferik Pacha, with a strong detachment, watched the passage of Kossuth, and took away from him and the Hungarians who escaped to Turkish ground all their war material and all the other objects belonging to Austria. The Government then appointed a special commission to make investigations, but that body committed so many imprudences that it was obliged to be dissolved. In the spring of 1863 the district where the crown was buried was inundated by the Danube. The exact spot was at the foot of Mount Allion, about a league from Vieux, Orsova, on the road to Walesebin. When Kossuth, then at London, heard of the floods, he dispatched an agent to dig up the treasure and remove it to London. But the Austrian police got information of the scheme, and the whole of the district was closely watched. The design of Kossuth transpired in Paris, and a Hungarian emigrant, speaking of the affair, said he would rather restore the crown to his country than to allow it to fall into the hands of the man who had plunged Hungary into misery. This came to the ears of Gen. Kempen, into whose management the Government had placed the matter, and he immediately communicated with the refugee who gave such exact indications that M. Kagar, who was sent from Vienna to the spot, arrived there on the 5th of September, 1853, and the next day telegraphed to Vienna that the place described by the Hungarian emigrant had been recognized. On the morning of the 8th, the royal insignia was discovered, and this event filled all Hungary with joy. On the 20th, the crown reached Vienna, and the next day was transferred to Buda.

A NEW CRIMINAL LAW DEMANDED.—The N. Y. Commercial, alluding to the Cole-Hiscock homicide, says:

This subject cannot be discussed in newspapers without embarrassment. It ought not to be unnecessarily discussed. But this seems a fitting occasion. Possibly some good may result from a great individual wrong. Of the three parties concerned all are fearful sufferers. The first offender has passed beyond the reach of human tribunals. His victim has a life of remorse and misery before her. The wronged and maddened husband, whatever a Court and jury may do, will know no more peace of mind. For all three there is a terrible complication of penalties—death, dishonor and imprisonment. * * *

The remedy is a just and impartial law—laws which inflict the same penalty upon common offenders—laws which, while they permit fallen women to be taken from the streets to Station Houses, allow those who ruined them to pursue their career, multiplying the number of their victims with impunity. The seduction of a young, unprotected, dependent girl, should be made a criminal offence. And if we are not insincere in professing to esteem female virtue as essential to the welfare of society, why should we refuse to throw the protection of law around it? We punish for trespass and for theft, and yet tolerate an offence infinitely more injurious.

If, for example, Mr. Hiscock had been guilty of any or all other offences against General Cole, would the latter have resorted, or thought of resorting to assassination? Certainly not! and for the reason that the laws provide adequate punishment for other offences.

A gentlemanly agent of a certain city was collecting fare from the passengers of a very full 'bus one morning. All paid promptly except one fat old lady, who sat next the door, and who seemed to be reaching down as if to get something she had dropped on the floor. When her time came to pay she raised her head and thus addressed the blushing youth: "I allers, when I travels, carry my money in my stockin', for you see nothing can git it that, and I'd thank you, young man, just to retch it for me, as I'm so jammed in I can't git to it." The youth looked at the other passengers, some of whom were laughing at his plight; one or two young ladies among them blushed scarlet, and he beat a sudden retreat, muttering something about not charging old ladies, etc. His cash was short that morning the fare of one passenger.

A Yankee genius out West, conceiving that a little powder thrown upon some green wood would facilitate its burning, directed a small stream upon the smoking pile; and not possessing a hand sufficiently quick to cut this off at a desirable moment, he was blown into pieces. The Coroner thus reasoned out the verdict: "It can't be called suicide, because he didn't mean to kill himself; it wasn't visitation of God, because he wasn't struck by lightning; he didn't die for the want of breath, for he hadn't anything left to breathe with. It's plain he didn't know what he was about, so I shall bring in: 'Died for want of common sense.'"

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.—Last Thursday, a week ago, at Wilson's Bridge, on the Cosumnes, John Fay, while working with a steam threshing machine, slipped and was caught in the cylinder when at full speed. His right leg to the hip was ground to atoms in an instant. He survived until about 10 P. M., but never rallied. He was the son of a widowed mother, living near the scene, and died saying, "Don't tell my mother."—Amador (Cal.) Ledger.

The late Dr. Hawes, of Hartford, said shortly before his death, that he would like to be young again, if for nothing more than to improve the opportunities now open to young men, who enjoy privileges so far superior to any known in the past generations.

Prentice quotes the remark of a New York paper, that "suicide is becoming alarmingly prevalent" in that city, and says: "We fear there are few cities where it could prevail with greater advantage to the world at large."
